ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS

- 2023 There Is No Such Thing As Circuit Law, 107 MINN. L. REV. (forthcoming)
- Argues that federal intermediate appellate courts do not make, find, or apply their own substantive bodies of federal law and explores how the belief that they do has led to mischief across many different areas of law.
- 2022 State Rejection of Federal Law, 97 NOTRE DAME L. REV. 761
- Argues that state judges, legislators, and electorates respond to federal judicial opinions not only by borrowing them into state law but also in many cases by explicitly rejecting them, creating space for state policy experimentation but also upsetting the policy balance struck by federal case law.

- 2021 The Paradox of Exclusive State-Court Jurisdiction Over Federal Claims, 105 MINN. L. REV. 1211
- Argues that recent changes in the law of individual Article III standing interact with state law to produce a paradox: many federal claims can be brought only in state court, and only in some states, leading to substantial litigation costs and the uneven development of federal law.
  - Cited in TransUnion v. Ramirez, 141 S. Ct. 2190, 2224 n.9 (2021) (Thomas, J., dissenting).
  - Awarded the Shook, Hardy & Bacon LLP Excellence in Research Award.
- 2018 Divide and Concur: Separate Opinions and Legal Change, 103 CORNELL L. REV. 817
- Uses a novel empirical database of Supreme Court concurring opinions created for the article and a global comparative study of separate judicial opinions to argue that separate opinions signal, invite, and catalyze legal change.
  - Awarded the American Academy of Appellate Lawyers' 2017–2018 Eisenberg Prize for the best article on appellate practice and procedure.
- 2012 The Canon at the Water's Edge, 87 N.Y.U. L. REV. 207
- Argues that the presumption against extraterritorial application of statutes has been strengthened as its justification shifted away from promoting international comity and toward ostensibly empirical assumptions about how Congress legislates.
  - Awarded the Paul D. Kaufman Memorial Award for the outstanding note in the Law Review.
